

Monthly Newsletter

Typical London Gal

It is March and boy was there a lot going on, with Pancake day, world book day and International Women's Day,

We have mothers day coming up, and I have already decided on gifts for this day but if you are still deciding then here are some ideas, and going to write content ready to help with ideas of what to do.

- A traditional bouquet of flowers
- Chocolates with a personalised mug
- Professional Photo Shoot
- Tickets for a show in a local theatre
- An afternoon tea
- A meal with your mum, her girlfriends and you
- A coffee and a slice of cake
- Breakfast in bed
- Homemade gifts like creating a card with a piece of Jewellery

There is also Easter Holidays, and this year I am going to create baskets to give, and putting little bits in them, and see if we are going to do an egg hunt this year like we have done before, even though I will be working through it, still like to do something for this holiday.

Then it is the Queens Jubilee and normally in England the UK, we often have a street parties and where my son lives will be doing that.

Then Friday coming as I write this Newsletter, is Comic Relief on Friday and they are selling items for this year TK Maxx, Sainsbury's and Argos, and so getting my son ready for that, for his school.

I am in process of writing two books, one is about The Art of blogging writing books, as it has been a great thing to do, and I love writing and creating books, that I do all the work on it, like writing and editing myself, but well worth it.

If you'd like to check these out, then you can on amazon.com under the names, Carrie Challoner, Carrie Lee Holmes and Carrie Holmes.

I am in the middle of writing a book, another Novel and hoping to get this completed by April, but my recent one published has been mum&me so if you like comedy then this is one for you.

2022 Challenges

March 2022: I am still doing March challenge and wanted to document it because clutter can be anything that is getting out of hand, in my book and so needs clearing out and so really want to get control of this, and in April will highlight how I did.

So because I have a lot of things to do, I am going to Challenge myself for April 2022, by setting a daily challenge each day.

Special Dates in my Diary I like to celebrate:

Easter Holidays
First Day of Spring
Mother's Day
St Georges Day
First Day of Summer
Comic Relief
Mental Health Week
May Day

There will be more Life Coaching blogs for my site, <https://everyonecanbuildacastle.com>

I will be filming more videos and write more blogs, and go to film my All About Books monthly video check out my Youtube Channel:

Being a Blog writer

Thank you for all your feedback and liking my content and for following me. It is a real compliment when people reach out to you, and I hope that you feel this way when you read my content.

A lot of work goes into writing, not just blogs but books too, and expanding my youtube channels, with videos, and when I see you liking it, I know I that my work has a purpose and not just a paragraph of words.

When it comes writing no idea is a bad idea, it just has to send a message out there in the world that reaches peoples hearts, and you need to believe it what you are writing, and I love being part of the writing community.
